To Whom it May Concern,

I am writing this letter in support of Beth Panivich and the Early Childhood Education Career and Technology Education program. I have had the opportunity to support the Delaware Valley School District, as well as, the CTE program. The Center for Developmental Disabilities and the Delaware Valley School District work closely together to provide opportunities to the students of this program. The students of the program come to us several days a week. They are always responsible, friendly and professional. They are a pleasure to work with.

Sincerely,
Jo Ann Yanuzzelli
Director of Programming

Students dominate FCCLA

By MAEVE DOWD

From March 29 to 31, students from the Early Childhood Career Tech program excelled at the Family Career and Community Leadership of America (FCCLA) competition.

The competition was held at Seven Springs Resort. The competition focused on students creating projects based upon issues involving family, career and community. At the competition, a panel of evaluators will judge the students' projects, which were completed within the community.

In addition to a competition focusing on early childhood, there was a competition that concentrated on culinary foods. This competition lets culinary students show judges the skills that they have learned and practiced during their high school career.

Childhood is going to Nationals, and we are all excited to compete again in Tennessee," said Cassaro.

All the students who competed at the FCCLA competition in March were diligently preparing for the competition since October, and it took multiple months for the students to prepare for.

competed at the competition and 5 will move onto the National competition during July in Nashville, Tenn. Students include seniors Jessica Sudano and Laura Cassaro and juniors Katie Mauro, Katelyn Casella and Annberly Duke.

"Everyone from Early

This was our very first time attending the FCCLA PA competition, and our students did an amazing job! I am so proud of them all! They represented Delaware Valley with pride & excellence," said Early Childhood adviser Mrs. Jillian Farr.
